

The paintings form a storyboard with well known image from recent history. Journalistic subjects are portrayed in such a way, as to create both a sense of familiarity and alienation. The viewer is challenged to create a narrative about the relationship between power, group behaviour and individual courage.